Administrator Certification Program Upgrade

The Long-Term Care Homes Act (LTCHA) introduced new requirements for individuals hired as an administrator or moving to the position of administrator in a different home. This upgrade session together with the completion of the 85-hour OANHSS Administrator Certification Program meets the requirement for 100 hours of instruction time in long term care home administration or management as specified in the LTCHA.

This two-day session focuses on two core competencies for administrators – strategic planning and executive communications.

Strategic and Operational Planning

Where are we going and how are we going to get there? These are two of the most important questions every organization and its leaders need to ask. This session will focus on effective strategic and operational planning processes that are the key to answering these vital questions. This knowledge and skill base is particularly crucial given demographic pressures, the changing resident population, new legislative and regulatory requirements, and higher expectations for a long term care system that responds to the specific needs and desires of today's and tomorrow's seniors.

Effective Executive Communications

Leaders must be able to effectively communicate their vision and expectations in terms that engage team members and positively influence key stakeholders. This session will focus on understanding your communications style and how to strategically adapt it to suit the situation and your audience in order to gain trust, constructively resolve conflict, develop and maintain positive relationships and meet your organizational goals.
